QUEBEC CONFERENCE.

The Most Important Meeting Since Confederation.

Harmonious Gathering --- Quebec's Greeting--The Address.

(Correspondence Montreal Herald.)

QUEBEC, Oct. 23.—The Conference is a much more important matter than the press of the Dominion Government would have us believe. It is serious, very serious, in its purpose. It is animated by the desire to strike some effective blow at the dragon of centralization, and there are a number of valiant and able St. Georges mounted with lance in rest. Mr. Mowat, who of those now here is the only member of the first Conference at Quebec in 1864, (the Conference that may be called the overture to Confederation) must feel that there is a good deal of bottled up fire, so to speak, at present in Quebec that was wanting on the first occasion, and no doubt it will be very effectively expressed in the resolutions that the Conference may pass. When in the course of human events it becomes necessary, as a familiar document has it, for the several members of a Confederation to meet in solemn conference to protest against the illegal assumption and exercise of power of their trustees and to devise means for the protection of their liberties, and the free exercise of their rights and privileges which their constitution provides, the situation cannot fail to be an interesting one. And when two men possessing the ability of Mr. Mowat and Mr. Mercier are prominent members of such a conference, not to mention the others, it is fair to assume that some means will be found of checking the unconstitutional invasions that are complained of, if not of making matters uncomfortable for the sinners in high places. And there is that buzz of expectation in the air that somehow or another only attends those efforts that are destined to accomplish something, but which is never heard as the prelude to a failure. It arises, of course, in this case from the fact that men know and have for some time known that the Conference was necessary in the interests of the people of Canada, but while the important Province of Quebec was held by the lieutenants of the dictator nothing could be done. The political atmosphere here to-day is one of freedom, elasticity and relief. It is that combination of sentiment which springs from a hope which it is felt is destined to be fulfilled. The provincial ministers who are here are men whom it is impossible to converse with without acquiring confidence in the handling of the interests confided to them. They are earnest and capable men. Their meeting is not a free lunch and cheap champagne occasion, such as we sometimes see in other quarters—they mean business. I had conversations with several, but until they have met round the council table they have not been in a position to speak very fully. On the Provincial Rights question, I take it, all are agreed, and there are points peculiar to each province that must necessitate explanation and discussion. The matter on which there is most likely to be diverse opinion is that relating to the financial basis of the Confederation. Ontario has been told very frequently that she supplies the greater part of the revenue and that others feed at her expense. This idea has been a little exaggerated, but it serves to make her representatives a little timid at mention of any proposition tending to re-arrangement of the subsidies. But it will perhaps be made clear that arrangements made in 1867, and made in more or less ignorance of what the condition of affairs would be twenty years after cannot be regarded as unchangeable conditions. The country may, and indeed has, outgrown its clothing and requires to be newly fitted. This, however, is the matter on which opinion will be less likely than on any other to be unanimous.

THE OPENING ADDRESS.

In the course of his opening address the Hon. Mr. Mercier referred to the speech from the throne delivered by Sir Andrew Stuart in opening the Legislature last March, wherein it was intimated that a conference would be invited by his government of members representing all the provinces comprising the Dominion of Canada. The reasons assigned for the assembling of such a conference as indicated in that speech were referred to by Mr. Mercier, in his address of welcome to the delegates, thanking them for the prompt manner in which they had responded to the invitation extended them, which indicated that they appreciated the importance of the Inter-Provincial Conference, the first which has been held since 1864, which was attended by distinguished statesmen from Upper and Lower Canada, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, and whose resolution served in some respects as the basis of the Union Act of 1867.

I am happy to observe that amongst the distinguished men who took part in the conference of 1864 was the Hon. Mr. Mowat, the present Premier of Ontario, which he has governed so successfully for fifteen years, and who has so ably defended the cause of provincial autonomy.

You, as well as ourselves, feel that it is not out of place nor opposed to the general interests of Canada, still less of the province, to convene after a lapse of 20 years representatives from the governments of all the provinces for the purpose of examining certain questions, an amicable solution of which the experience of past years may have shown to be necessary.

The Government which has taken the initiative in connection with this Conference, deems it its duty to declare at once that the Conference must not be considered in the light of a hostile move against the Federal authorities, but that its sole object is to endeavor to solve, in the general interests of the whole of Canada, such difficulties as experience has shown to exist in the relations between the general and the provincial governments.

The Government of Quebec desires that our Federal institutions be maintained, and in order that their maintenance and proper working may be secured it asks you to adopt means to remove all possibility of conflict between the general government and the governments of the provinces.

In meeting to-day for the purpose of discussing the general interests of the Confederation and of the provinces and of ascertaining the defects and omissions in the working of our constitution, we must admit that we but imitate the example given by the most distinguished statesmen of confederated countries in which at various periods of their history it has been found necessary to do what we are doing.

I can give you no more convincing proof that the feeling which prompted the idea of this Conference was devoid of all hostility against the Federal power than by reminding you that following to the letter the declaration made by the head of the executive of the province, we have specially invited the Federal authorities to take part in our deliberations in order to assist us with their experience and their good will. It is with sincere regret that I am compelled to inform you that these authorities have declined the friendly invitation we extended them. I may safely say that the result of this Conference will establish the sincerity of this declaration, and that our labors, inspired by the most enlightened patriotism and guided by the experience of the distinguished men whom I see about me, will be beneficial to the general interest of Canada and especially further those of the provinces which we respectively represent.

I notice with feelings of pleasure, gentlemen, that you have not found it strange that this conference should have been proposed by the most French of all the provinces of the Confederation, and that it should be convened at Quebec, the very place where that of 1864 was held. The inhabitants of this province are grateful for this act of courtesy on your part.

Although the Government of this province has suggested the idea of this conference I may state, and I hasten at once to do so, that it has no intention of dictating the subjects which are to be discussed. It merely indicates the chief points which have attracted its attention and which might perhaps, with others which you are invited to suggest, be the subject of your deliberations.

Such are, gentleman, some of the remarks which I deem it my duty to make at the opening of this conference to justify our action in the matter. I submit these remarks with all the respect due to our sister provinces and to the distinguished representatives they have sent here.

I may be permitted to add that the members of the government of this province, as well as the officers of the various departments, place themselves at your disposal, so as to lighten your labors and render your stay in our ancient capital as pleasant as possible.

Mr. John Hendry, of the Royal City Planing Mills, New Westminster and Vancouver, one of British Columbia's most progressive and enterprising business men, accompanied by his wife, is in the city.

Mrs. Robert Wallace, Park Road, who has been seriously ill for some time back, has so far recovered towards convalescence as to be able to be moved out of her room for a short time.

Mr. G. W. Inglis, of the Geo. F. Blake Manufacturing Company, Boston, is in the city. He came over the Canadian Pacific from the "Hub" and is enthusiastic in his praise of and admiration for Canada's national highway.

Mr. Alfred Jones, of Winnipeg, special agent for the Western Assurance Company of Canada, with headquarters at San Francisco, is in the city en route for his future home in the Bay City. He represents a first-class company in every respect.

Mr. W. H. Cullin, a popular member of the 90th battalion, Winnipeg, and one of the best men of the 90th lacrosse team, has left that city for this coast. It is said Billy will be greatly missed in the east. He is likewise a member of the "art preservative of all arts."

Mr. W. H. Bone, of Messrs. Hibben & Co., with Mrs. Bone, returned to the city last night after an absence of a couple of months. During his trip Mr. Bone visited the home of his youth, Bowmanville, but which he left 24 years ago. He also visited the commercial centres of Eastern Canada and the United States, where he made heavy purchases for the coming holiday season. Mrs. Bone was visiting in Chilliwhack during her husband's absence. He reports business as very brisk in the east. Many old British Columbians were encountered by him in his travels, several of whom are coming back again.

A Work of Art.

One of the sisters of St. Ann's convent has just completed a most beautiful piece of hand-painting, which reflects the greatest praise on that lady, and proves her an artist of unusual merit. It is a white satin costume with a bouquet of flowers on the panel of the skirt, representing the bouquet de la France. On the drapery is another bunch of roses pensie de Mozart, and the mantle is equally beautifully decorated with various emblems. This dress will be worn by Madame de la Mothe, for whom it was made, at her concert to-morrow night.

Don't

let that cold of yours run on. You think it is a light thing. But it may run into catarrh. Or into pneumonia. Or consumption.

The breathing apparatus must be kept healthy and clear of all obstructions and offensive matter. Otherwise there is trouble ahead.

All the diseases of these parts, head, nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs, can be delightfully and entirely cured by the use of Boschee's German Syrup. If you don't know this already, thousands and thousands of people can tell you. They have been cured by it, and "know how it is themselves." Bottle only 75 cents. Ask any druggist.

GOLD IN THE EAST.

DULUTH, Minn., Oct. 26.—The reported find of gold near the international boundary was proved last evening by the arrival of George and Frank Spencer, of St. Louis, and Louis Beaubier, of the British Northwest territory, with a small tin box full of nuggets of native gold, including a magnificent specimen of almost entirely pure gold as large as a man's hand.

THE CHINESE-AMERICAN BANK.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—The Chinese Consul said to-day his latest advices were that the so-called Mitkiewitz agreement was still in abeyance. He could confirm the report printed in the morning paper that a bank would be established in Pekin with a capital of $100,000,000 with Vanderbilt as president and a vice-president in China. He was of the opinion the original agreement will be modified in its powers.

NINE MEN DROWNED.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—A dispatch received at the Merchants' Echange today from Valparaiso states that the British bark Balaklava, from London to San Francisco was dismasted during a gale, and had her decks stove in off Cape Horn. She is now at Ancud. During the gale nine men, including the mate, were washed overboard and drowned.

HEAVY SUITS.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 28.—The great twenty million dollar case against the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio railroad company was ended in the common pleas court to-day by the payment of the small amount of costs remaining. THE BALDWIN MURDER.

CITY OF MEXICO, Oct. 28.—The menacing tone of a section of the press of California regarding the case of Leon Baldwin, who was murdered by bandits in the state of Durango some months ago, attracts the attention of the newspapers here. The sentiment of the Mexican journals is that it is unjust to make the case one against the Mexican government, as Baldwin was engaged in trade at a point notoriously unsafe by reason of its being the haunt of bandits, who had murdered many foreigners and were the terror of Mexicans as well. The band that killed Baldwin were professional robbers, and so far have managed to elude the authorities.

CABLE NEWS.

ALARMING SUSPICIONS.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The police take a very serious view of the facts brought out at the Coben inquest yesterday. By no means were all the facts brought out, only enough to put the public to a certain extent on its guard. The chiefs of the detective force believe dynamite outrages are imminent, and precautions are now being taken on a great scale. Public buildings are watched with no less care than during the last dynamite campaign. Assassination, they say, was to accompany the explosions. Balfour is now hated by the Irish as every other chief secretary has been. Mr. Morley was to have been the first victim. It was supposed that an attempt would be made when he speaks next week at Birmingham.

STORM ON ENGLISH COAST.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Details of the losses caused by the stupendous gales on all the coast are coming in. Many vessels lost all their deck loads. The steamer Alexandria, which left Holyhead last night, encountered most severe weather. Heavy seas swept over her, damaging the bulwarks and smashing the deck houses. A number of Irish harvesters, deck passengers, who were returning from the English harvest, suffered terribly. Some of them were swept about the deck while others were pitched into the engine room, with the result that one of them and three others were severely injured. Twelve fishermen belonging to Yarmouth smacks were lost during the gale.

CHINESE-AMERICAN BANK.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—A cable reached here last evening that W. K. Vanderbilt had been named as the president of the proposed Chinese-American bank. A dispatch was sent to Vanderbilt, who is in Paris, asking him what truth there was in the statement. He answered that he himself had no interest whatever in the proposed bank, and thought that neither of his brothers had any.

AGAINST CHAMBERLAIN.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The News this morning says that unless Lord Salisbury wishes the fisheries negotiations between England and the United States to be hopelessly doomed from the outset, he must cancel the appointment of Chamberlain and select another commissioner.

CZAR AMD EMPEROR.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—It is stated to-day that the Czar will return from Copenhagen to St. Petersburg via Berlin, where he will have a private interview with the Emperor William.

PUNISHING THE PATRIOTS.

DUBLIN, Oct. 27.—Mr. Roche, the poor law guardian, who was arrested at Woodford at the same time that Sir Wilfred Blunt was, has received a sentence of three weeks' imprisonment. He was not sentenced to hard labor.

MGR. PERSICO'S FAILURE.

ROME, Oct. 27.—The Pope is disappointed at the failure of Mgr. Persico to accomplish his mission, he having only obtained vague declarations, entirely useless in furthering the holy father's desire to pave the way for the renewal of the vatican's relationship with England.

FERDINAND'S CONGRATULATIONS.

SOFIA, Oct. 27.—Prince Ferdinand, in his address to the Sobranje at its formal opening, said that the government was working for the prosperity and greatness of Bulgaria. Since his accession to the throne, order, tranquility and security had been restored, and the people now happily occupied peaceful pursuits, have the sympathies of the Sultan of Turkey and sovereigns of other great powers.

A NAPOLEONIC MANIFESTO.

PARIS, Oct. 25.—Prince Victor Napoleon has issued a manifesto, replying to the manifesto issued by the Count of Paris some time ago. He demands an appeal to the people, and asserts that the Napoleons alone can give France a strong democratic government.

HUGE FORTUNES.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The winds of October have this year proved unusally fatal to millionaires. Hugh McCalmont, the banker, who died last week at his house at Grosvenor place, was one of the richest men in London. Baron Raphael De Stern has also passed away. McCalmont's fortune will probably exceed £4,000,000. He gave the late Lord Cairns £100,000 on his becoming Lord Chancellor and is said to have given him similar sums afterwards. Baron Herman De Stern, who died in his 63rd year, Thursday, at Hyde Park Gate, has, like McCalmont, left a fortune of several million pounds.

CANADIAN NEWS.

HARD ON INCENDIARIES.

MONTREAL, Oct. 28.—It is rumored that a number of citizens, tired of the inactivity of the police regarding the authors of recent incendiary fires, have determined to form a vigilance committee to bring them to justice. A special from Kingston to-day announces that the police court was crowded to excess to hear the sentence passed on the two men, Newman and Andrews, who were caught in the act of setting fire to the Third Methodist Church after having destroyed the Salvation Army barracks. Newman was given 42 years in the penitentiary and Andrews was sentenced to confinement for life. These are the heaviest sentences ever imposed in Eastern Ontario.

RED RIVER VALLEY ROAD.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 28.—Definite information was given by the Government to-day that a basis of agreement between Contractor Holt and the Local Government, by which the Red River Valley road is to be completed this season, had been settled and finally ratified, and that operations upon the road will be commenced at once.

IGNORING THE CONFERENCE.

We certainly will not object to the Colonist calling our attention to the fact that the Provincial Secretary has denied that his absence from the Quabec Conference was due to the "entreaties" of the Federal Government. In fact, we are rather gratified than otherwise, that our morning contemporary should direct attention to the "repudiation" of the Hon. Mr. Rosson, for the effect will be either to assist in exposing the untruthfulness of the "denial," or to show that our government is indifferent or hostile to a removal of the grievances under which the provinces labor. It cannot escape both horns of the dilemma. Mr. Ronson has a habit of "denying" former statements and repudiating recent acts which makes it imperative that his contradictions should be received with caution. During last session he made an assertion about the million dollar loan which a school-boy would be ashamed of, and ten minutes after, amid the laughter of the entire house, denied that he had ever uttered the ridiculous statement. John Ronson can swallow his own words faster than he can utter them, and no person knows this better than the senior editor of the Colonist. But assuming that the Provincial Secretary is speaking the truth, what then? The government of which he is a member have still to explain their reason for declining to take part in a meeting of provincial statesmen convened in the interests of the provinces. If Mr. Davie and his colleagues were not prevented by "party" considerations it will be interesting to know why they have shown so much disregard for provincial rights. An explanation is now in order, and we invite our morning contemporary to supply it. The use of the term "Riellite press" by a journal that supports Messrs. Turner, Macdonald & Co., in their unpatriotic efforts to depopulate the province is somewhat out of place in this connection, but our contemporary has not a very lofty conception of the duty that private citizens or public men owe to the state.

THE COMING QUESTION.

Referring to the speech recently delivered by Sir Richard Cartwright to his constituents of South Oxford in Ingersoll, the Toronto Week considers it to have been "an important as well for a singularly masterful treatment of the subject as for its utterance by the real and proper leader of the Liberal party. True, Sir Richard deprecated the making of Commercial Union a party question; it should, he thought, be considered, not from the standpoint of Conservatives or of Reformers, but of Canadians—willing to weigh the question upon its merits; and he spoke, not for his party, but for himself alone. Still, on account of his prominent public position, infinitely more weight must be attached to his opinion than to that of perhaps any previous speaker on this subject. For as he goes, probably a great party will go; and it appears to us that if that party should definitly embrace Commercial Union as the chief feature of its immediate programme, nothing—if the Americans consent—could prevent the ultimate adoption of Commercial Union by Canada, and therefore probably the return to power of the Liberal party. The major part of the Liberal party are already, without doubt, in favor of the idea of Commercial Union; and with the additional strength the party would gather in the Maritime Provinces, in Manitoba, and indeed all along the border, from the Eastern Townships to British Columbia, by adopting Commercial Union as a measure of Liberal policy, we should expect to see it sweep the country at the next general election. Nevertheless, the Liberal party should not even for this advantage abandon its traditional Free Trade principles. Whether it remain in opposition, or as a government negotiate a treaty of Commercial Union with the States, a tariff for revenue only should be the goal at which it aims. At the comparatively high rate the financial obligations of this country render necessary, such a tariff, judiciously adjusted, will afford all needful protection to every industry worth fostering. This protection, it is true, will avail only against competition from Europe, if Commercial Union be established; but in that case the country will have determined that Canadian industries shall not be protected against the States, and the industries affected must, if they have suffered, be dealt with in some other way."

WIMAN IN WINNIPEG.

Under date of Oct. 19, Mr. Wiman writes the Winnipeg Board of Trade accepting their invitation to address a meeting of citizens there on the subject of Commercial Union, but he cannot at present name a date. Both Mr. Wiman and the Hon. Benjamin Butterworth have an engagement at St. Paul for a date not yet determined on, but it will likely be about November 21st, as they will be in Oswego on Nov. 19th. Mr. Butterworth is now engaged in a political contest in Ohio. Efforts should be made to induce Messrs. Wiman and Butterworth to extend their visit to the Pacific Coast. An address in Victoria on the subject of Commercial Union would be greatly appreciated.

SADLY IGNORANT.

As a general rule the press, as well as many of Britain's public men, display great ignorance in regard to matters Canadian. In discussing topics relating to this country the gravest blunders are frequently perpetrated. In a recent issue Herepaths, the leading railway journal of the United Kingdom, objects to the Canadian Pacific route to Asia, on the ground that the harbor at Vancouver is liable to be frozen over, and that the Northern Pacific is a frozen sea. The penny-a-liner on that sheet should visit the coast for a winter. Then he would be in a position to write correctly and intelligently on a subject on which he is in as great darkness as an Egyptian mummy.

OUR EUROPEAN LETTER

President Grevy's Son-in-Law---The Ministry of War.

Paris, Oct. 23.—President Grevy has never had a very quiet term, and he has probably been very much inclined to withdraw to his home in the country a great many times. In no instance, however, has he been quite so harassed as in the present case of Caffarel Limouxin and Wilson.

NO OTHER AVAILABLE MAN.

There can be no donbt of the fact that the government, including the president himself, has cast about to find some willing tool who could be a representable figure-head. The names of Leon Say and De Freycinet have been alternately brought forward as possible contingencies.

Admiral Jaureguiberry had been thought of before his death, but since the Boulanger periodical explosions there is a public dread of both the army and navy, and thus it is that the present president of the French Republic must stay over, an unwilling victim.

A CLEAR RECORD.

Whatever faults his adversaries may ascribe to M. Grevy, there has been no personal scandal in his administration other than through his son-in-law. With all allowance, however, for party opposition, personal dislike and political animosity, the belief gains ground that in the career of M. Wilson as the son-in-law of the president there must be a very large screw loose.

A QUESTIONABLE CONNECTION.

Thus, no one is very much comforted, in the presence of the above perplexities, to find out that the adherents of M. Wilson at Tours have organized a meeting for the 25th inst., and that the Deputy intends, as he puts it, to profit by this opportunity to defend himself publicly.

A QUEER SET.

What astonishes and humiliates most, is the fact of the existence of such creatures as Limouzin and company right in the midst of the most respectable and honored classes, and the hushing up of the business only adds further to the belief that the measures taken were necessary to cover other responsible persons and to hide other personal matters.

DREAD TO UNCOVER THE SORE.

It is usually supposed that the army, as a class, represents the essence of honorable intent. That the simple soldier, the raw peasant lad of yesterday, should perchance fall a victim to the beaux yeux of the fair sex is possible, but when it comes to a General, and not to one, but to several, when it becomes apparent that this gangrenous corruption has extended over the highest representative class, then the hope is openly expressed that the official authorities will interfere to moderate the zeal and research of inquiries.

FORGETFUL OF TRADITIONS.

The spectacle of General Caffarel standing in the criminal dock is not a pleasant one, and in this country, where the slightest altercation forces off two men to a duel or to explanation, one wonders why a soldier has forgotten and forgets those lessons. He must have a revolver lying about loose somewhere. This sentiment, in fact, about sums up public appreciation.

A CHANGE NEEDED.

There is some talk of a civilian taking the office of Minister of War. All the recent representatives of that office have been military men, it is true, but none could show any very heroic or immortal deeds to particularly qualify them for this exalted position. Some of the wise men of the hour think, too, that citizens might perhaps dare to curtail somewhat the enormous expenditures.

ENCHANTING TOILETS.

Among the nicest street dresses ordered this week in Paris is one made for Princess Bariominsky. It is plain brown cloth of a rich dark shade, with front and color in fancy-striped gold.

The Princess Bariominsky also is having made some charming theatre gowns. One is a suit of fine silk gauze, with a gracefully draped overdress, down one side of which skirt are pleats of gauze embroidered in gold. The bodice is made of an antique rose-colored silk jacket with exquisite oriental designs embroidered on it in gold.

Beneath the close-fitting jacket was a loose front of embroidered gauze fastened at the waist by three bands of white silk ribbons, arranged diagonally. The sleeves, of antique rose silk, came to the elbow, from which extend full gauze undersleeves to the wrist, around which were bands of gold braid.

Constantinople, Oct. 23.—The Sultan feels convinced that there is immediate danger impending for Turkey, for His Majesty has given orders that all the troops recently massed in European Turkey are to be drafted off to their Natolian homes. There has been much gay revelry at the Jildez Kiosque. The Sultan has been entertaining two delightful Japanese chrysanthemums, the Prince and Princess Komatsu. At the close of a grand banquet, the Padishah rose and, beaming upon his Japanese guests, said: "There is kinship between our two countries symbolized on their respective ensigns by the crescent and the rising sun. The origin of the two races is found, in same part of Asia. The Japanese and Turks both arrived at their national existence by the path of conquest. The 'daimios' of Japan correspond exactly to the 'beys' of the Turks, both holding land upon the same tenure of military service."

AN EXCEPTION.

This is the first time that the Sultan was ever known to make an after-dinner speech. At the banquet given to the Japanese Princes, Sir Charles and Lady Dilke were present. The Padishah, who has a keen appreciation for the weakness of human nature and the frailties of the flesh, has shown the most marked attention to Sir Charles Dilke and seemed to have been keenly appreciative of Sir Charles Dilke's fascinating manners, and saw in him solely the statesman who but a short time since wielded such power in moulding and directing England's foreign policy. The Herald's correspondent met Sir Charles Dilke as he left the Sultan's banquet.

SIR CHARLES' PURPOSES.

He told me that he had come to Turkey merely to make the personal acquaintance of the leading men of Constantinople. In his study of the present and future political conditions of Europe, Sir Charles said: "I have seen nothing yet that leads me to modify the views that I have already expressed in print, but I have been greatly struck by the force and intelligence displayed in the Sultan's observations, and in the questions that His Majesty asked me." Sir William White, the British Embassador, is not altogether satisfied with the friendly personal relations that have sprung up between the Sultan and Sir Charles. As an old friend the Embassador could not help receiving Sir Charles at his house, which he did, however, in the quietest manner possible.

Rome, Oct. 23.—Monsignor Persico, the Papal Envoy to Ireland, has returned to the city. It is stated that an audience had with Cardinall Rampolla, the Papal Secretary of State, Monsignor Persico declared that his reception in Ireland could not have been more satisfactory. The political situation in that country, he said, was unchanged. the Roman Catholic Bishops finding themselves unable, even in the interest of the church, to alter their attitude toward the British Government. It is reported that Cardinal Simeoni, the prefect of the Propaganda, Monsignor Persico and Father Gualdy, who accompanied Persico to Ireland, will, however, continue to seek data to serve as a basis of mediation, which the Pope is anxious to offer.

NATIONAL GRANT MADE.

France and Austria have already made grants for the purpose, and it is expected that Russia and Germany will also join. England's aid is especially needed for use of the observatory at the Cape of Good Hope and one which is to be built in New Zealand.

It is said here that the United States will be invited to join. The photographic telescope to be used cost about $10,000.

AN INFANT EPICURE.

Josef Hofman, the child pianist, sails for America by the steamship Aller on November 17th, accompanied by his father and mother and his German manager. Passage has been secured by the Canadian line from Liverpool, but Josef's fastidious palate objected to English cooking on the sea and shore, and his unhappy manager was obliged to spend $30 extra to change the steamer.

DICKENS' CASH BOOK.

The cash book kept by Dickens in 1828, when a boy in Blackmore's office, has just been unearthed. The signature on the fly leaf is the earliest known. The account contains the name of Weller, Mr. Bardell, etc.

The late Earl Compton died heir to $500,000 per annum. He would have been a very nice young noble if he had let the wine cup alone, but they called him a young man by the name of Cuppy.

The Duke of Marlborough has a high opinion of American real estate. He is said to have invested a number of dueal pounds sterling in the same. Realty feels pretty shaky in England at present.

The Paris Charivari, speaking of the recent report that Bonaparte's ashes had been stolen, remarks: "Let him sleep in the midst of that French people whom he loved so well and whom he caused to be so well massacred."

The English Treasury officials are considering a request from the Astronomical Society for a grant to enable England to take part in a grand project, first proposed at the recent Astronomical Congress in Paris, of making a photographic map of the heavens by appliances now perfected. It is believed that several million stars could be photographed.

Chilliwhack Correspondence.

On Tuesday the 20th inst. a plowing match took place on Mr. J. C. Henderson's field, nearly opposite the exhibition grounds. At an early hour there was a large number of spectators in the field. If the plowing committee had tried to pick a worse field for the match I think they would have found it a very difficult matter. The surface of the ground was very rough, and there were cradle knolls all over the field, to say nothing of the sod, which was not much better than stubble to do prize plowing in. There were only two classes, one for men the other for boys. In the men's class, J. T. Wilkinson won the 1st prize, $10; Thos. Nelson 2nd, $5. In the boys' class there was only one ploughman, William Kipp, who was awarded the 1st prize, $10. The plowing lasted from 10 a. m. until 1:30 p. m. In the evening a concert was given in the Hall by New Westminster and Chilliwhack talent for the benefit of the Royal City hospital.

Mr. W. H. Bone, of your city, arrived here on the 23rd inst. from the east, where he has been doing business for the past six weeks. He and Mrs. Bone are guests at Mrs. Evans' at present.—Com.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Price $1; six bottles, $5.

I do not believe that Ayer's Sarsaparilla has an equal as a cure for Scrofulous Humors. It is pleasant to take, gives strength to the body, and produces a more permanent result than any medicine I ever used. —E. Haines, North Lindale, Ohio.

I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla, in my family, for Scrofula, and know, if it is taken faithfully it will thoroughly eradicate this terrible disease. —W. F. Fowler, M.D., Greenville, Tenn.

For forty years I have suffered with Erysipelas. I have tried various remedies for my complaint, but found no relief until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. After taking ten bottles of this medicine I am completely cured. —M. C. Amesbury, Rockport, Me.

I have suffered, for years, from Catarrh, which was so severe that it destroyed my appetite and weakened my system. After trying other remedies, without relief, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, in a few months, was cured. —Susan L. Cook, 900 Albany st., Boston, Mass.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla is superior to any blood purifier that I ever tried. I have taken it for Scrofula, Canker, and Salt-Rheum, and received much benefit from it. It is good, also, for a weak stomach. —Millie Jane Peirce, S. Bradford, Mass.

A SLAUGHTER HOUSE.

The Establishment Where Cattle and Sheep are Made Ready for the Metropolitan Butchers' Stalls—A Sanguinary Current—Blood and Bones.

Few of the thousands of men in this big town who are strengthened every day by a juicy beefsteak ever think how far that steak has been brought, or through what various processes it has been put before being placed smoking on the plate, savory and tempting. A reporter who was ignorant about the evolution of the beefsteak started out for information on the subject, and he incidentally learned something about mutton and veal.

It was learned at the stock yards at the foot of Sixtieth street, close to the Hudson river, that New York state does not furnish cattle enough in one year to supply the market of this city for one day. The stock yards have accommodations for 3,000 calves, 10,000 sheep, and 7,000 cattle, but they are called upon very seldom to take care of such a large number; besides, the arrivals are only temporary boarders, consigned to large meat dealers in this city. The cattle sometimes remain in the stock yards but a brief hour, and never more than a day. A great many of them however, have but a short distance to go to the shambles.

At the foot of Fifty-ninth street is situated one of the best equipped slaughter houses in the United States. Four hundred cattle are killed there every day and 500 sheep and calves are there made ready for the butchers' stalls. This immense building is built of brick and covers at least two acres of ground. If there is any virtue in being killed neatly and quickly, the cattle brought to this slaughter house have reason to be congratulated. No tough sinewed Texan cattle are brought here to have their hides taken off, but fat, juicy critters from Illinois and Indiana, and the knee deep blue grass region of Kentucky. There are but two floors to the building. To the beams of the upper floor are fastened thousands of iron hooks, pendant from which there hung yesterday a half acre of beef, veal and mutton. Great stalls, ribbed with iron bars, are ranged along one side of the upper floor, and into these the cattle are driven early in the morning. Two men are required to kill a steer. A stout rope is fastened around the animal's hind legs, and his body is lifted in the air by means of a windlass, so that his fore shoulders and head rest on the floor. Simultaneously a sharp blow is struck upon his forehead and his jugular vein is severed.

A SANGUINARY CURRENT.

Those who are anxious to see the crimson flood spoken of in story books should go to the shambles at any time during the day between the hours of 6 a. m. and 6 p. m. Each animal bleeds from one-half to two gallons, and this sanguinary current flows steadily all day and pours through an iron shoot in the asphalt flooring into an iron cradle on wheels, placed there to receive it. The contents of these cradles is poured into an iron vat, where it is boiled to a thick, dough like consistency. From the vat it is placed in bags and pressed in a huge machine, from which it issues in the shape of big cakes two inches thick. These cakes are then thrown into a machine, which dries and grinds them so that a substance as fine as coffee is thrown out of the machine. It is then put in bags and sold for fertilizing purposes.

Blood prepared in this manner is of great value as a manure and brings from $40 to $50 a ton. After the bullock is dead he is hoisted up clear of the floor and his jacket is taken off. His heart and liver are removed, and he is cut into two pieces down the back. The loose flesh around the neck is carefully skewered up and he is ready for the market. In the meantime the other portions of his body which are not marketable as food, with the exception of his hoofs, are tried out and the fat separated. The residuum is dried and ground. A fertilizer is made from this remainder which brings $30 a ton.

The horns are sold and made into knife handles and buttons, and the hoofs are sent to the late Peter Cooper's glue factory. The skulls, after every particle of meat has been removed, are ground into bone dust. The hides are salted down for a week or ten days and then disposed of to leather manufacturers. Every night at 6 o'clock the place is treated to a bath, and when the workmen are through squirting a portion of the North river around the floor the establishment is clean and sweet as a kitchen floor in a well regulated house.—New York Evening Sun.

Thomas Jefferson's Indebtedness.

Driven to extremities by the necessity of paying a security debt of $20,000 which he had indorsed, he applied to the legislature of Virginia in the last year of his life to be allowed to dispose of his property by lottery. "If it is permitted in my case," he writes, "my lands here alone, with the mills, etc., will pay everything, and will leave Monticello and a farm free. If refused, I must sell everything here, perhaps considerably in Bedford, move thither with my family, where I have not even a log hut to put my head into." The privilege asked was finally granted, but so tardily that it wrung from him, like a groan of anguish, the sentence, "I count on nothing now. I am taught to know my standard."

As so often happens, the lottery scheme failed through popular apathy. But the public sympathy was to some extent aroused, and citizens of New York, of Philadelphia, and of Baltimore sent him contributions amounting in the aggregate to $16,500. This relief, though inadequate, was yet sufficient to justify his belief that Monticello would be saved to his daughter. In this hope he died July 4, 1826, having occupied Monticello as a home just six years more than half a century, and was buried in the little graveyard he had planned nearly three-quarters of a century before.—J. G. Nicolay in The Century.

Electricity a Form of Matter.

It is a well known fact that quantity of electricity measured in coulombs never is generated, never is consumed, and never does grow less, excepting leakage. The current flowing out of a lamp is exactly the same in quantity as that going into it. The same is true of motors and of generators, showing that electricity of itself is neither consumed while doing work, nor is it generated. After doing work in a lamp or motor it comes out in precisely the same quantity as it entered. A battery is not able to generate quantity or coulombs of electricity; all it is able to do is to take the quantity which pours in at one pole and send it out at the other pole with an increased pressure, or E. M. F. Electricity, therefore, is not merely force (or a form of energy), but matter. It is precisely analogous to water in a water circuit. The water is neither consumed nor generated. The pump merely increases the pressure of the water which flows in at one end. The water motor merely consumes the pressure and converts it into mechanical work of another kind. It does not consume the water. The quantity of water, measured in units of quantity, is the same in all parts of a closed circuit of water.—Carl Hering in Electrical World.

For the Summer.

"Haven't seen your brother for the last week or two. Is he away?"

"Yes, Bill has gone off for the summer."

"Long Branch?"

"No, not quite. I guess the judge meant the work house when he said ninety days."—Detroit Free Press.

A very large number of Irish names end with "agh." Agh generally means field in Irish. Thus: Carnagh means hollow field, Carrah, race field. It is not improbable that these names were originally given to people who dwelt in or near localities which were indicated by the name.

HOW CANYON JOE DIED.

My recollections of Canyon Joe recall a unique character, whose brief career and violent end are not recorded in the annals of the great and growing west. He was an exotic—a child of the east—but he grew to manhood among the rough frontiersmen, and the howl of the coyote, the shriek of the destructive blizzard, were as music to his ear. His nature was gradually transformed to a toughness that matched well the hardy cactus and the stunted chaparral. He was called Canyon Joe because he was found in a canyon by some trappers and adopted by me. He had strayed from a wagon train on its way to Utah and got lost. At this time he was 14 years old, and possessed of an amount of nerve, which, by assiduous cultivation, developed his capacity to cut a wide and crimson swath in any community that gave him the slightest provocation. When I met him it was several years after the war. I was with a mining party prospecting in Arizona. We were in the bleak but picturesque mountainous region where old Geronimo so long defied the United States army. There were fifteen of us in the party, including a half breed scout and several old miners, who knew the country pretty well. One evening we had struck our camp on the mountain side, near a small stream, and put out the usual pickets for Indians, when we heard a commotion and very soon the scout came walking in, leading a horse that had a rider. The horseman was Canyon Joe, and he seemed to be very happy to find white men with plenty to eat and drink. He had two Indian scalps, freshly taken, dangling at the pommel of his saddle, and he explained that he killed the redskins in an open, square fight. The miners present did not credit this, and rather suspected that he slipped upon them unawares. His face looked as if it had been tanned for ages by a hot sun and scoured by dirt scooped from an alkali plain. Although only medium sized he seemed to possess a wiry frame and great physical strength and endurance. His eyes were small and a piercing black, set very close together, and separated by the bridge of a very thin aquiline nose. He asked permission to camp with us that night, and agreed to act as guide for the party during the rest of the trip. It was considered better to utilize him than to have him at large—perhaps stirring up the Indians against us—so we gave him a cordial reception. After supper we sat before a small fire in front of the tent and passed the bottle. Canyon Joe drank freely, and began to narrate some of his exploits. The half breed scout, a tall, athletic man, sat, or rather reclined, on the ground by the fire, opposite Joe. He kept his eyes fastened on the latter and listened attentively, but never ventured a remark.

Canyon Joe related the following adventure: "It was along in the '60's that I agreed to act as scout for a party of nine men who wanted to explore the country now known as the Black Hills. These men were a tough lot, some gamblers, some miners, and all good on the shoot. I was barely 20 years old and looked younger, so when I offered myself as a scout they laughed at me and called me a kid. But when they made inquiries and learned that I had been nearly everywhere in the west and killed about as many Indians as the next one they accepted my services. If they had not I intended to add one or two out to settle for calling me a kid. These men somehow knew that plenty of gold was in the Black Hills, and had a map that some miner gave them on his deathbed. We started up the Little Big Missouri river in a large yawl boat, with plenty of provisions and firearms. It was slow work pulling up the river, but in ten days we had gone quite a distance. We hadn't been bothered by Indians, and I thought it mighty queer. It was in the fall of the year and the weather was fine. At night we tied our boat to the bank and camped on shore. We always took precautions, though, against the Indians, for fear of a surprise. Just about sunset one day I got ashore as usual and walked up the bank to select a place to camp while the party rowed along in the boat. I had not gone far when I heard a volley of firearms. I rushed to the river and saw the boat a few hundred yards above, but no one was pulling at the oars. Every man in it was dead or dying. A crowd of Indians on both sides of the river were firing into the boat, and some were swimming out to bring it to shore. The attack was a complete surprise, and I have no doubt the first volley killed them all. I wanted revenge, but single handed I could not attack them. Luckily I had my rifle and ammunition with me or I would have starved to death. I knew that I was far from any settlement, and that if I escaped the Indians I might meet death in some other form. I crept swiftly from the river, aided by the approaching night, and had gone about half a mile when a big Indian stood right up in front of me. I was a surprise to him, and I know he was to me, but I drove my hunting knife into his breast so quick that he tumbled back without a groan. He was a stray Indian belonging to the band who did the murderous work at the river. For three days I kept up a brisk pace, and managed to kill some game, which I ate raw. Then fatigue began to tell upon me.

"On the fourth day I trudged along weary and dispirited. I knew the Indians were not giving chase, but I didn't know how soon I might meet another band. I came to a shallow stream and waded across. As I started to climb the bank I was struck by the appearance of the soil. I scratched about a little and found that gold was plentiful. For a while I forgot my fatigue and drove two sticks down to indicate my claim. I slept near by that night, and when I awoke the sun was up, and two rough looking white men, armed with rifles, were standing near me. I tried to get up, but I fell back exhausted. The men came forward and asked me how I came there and what my business was. I explained my escape from the Indians, and then they treated me better. They picked me up and carried me to a small house some little distance away. When they entered the house an Indian woman, who proved to be the wife of one of the men, assisted them to put me on a few skins spread upon the floor. A half breed girl, tall and handsome, about 17 or 18 years old, the daughter, was in the house and paid scarcely any attention to my entrance. I was feverish from hunger and wanted to gorge at once, but they gave me food in small quantities. For two days I did not stir from the house. In my delirium I must have talked about the claim I had staked, for as soon as I became lucid I noticed that a change had taken place in the people. I resolved to play delirious in order to discover their plans. I raved and talked incoherently and finally cried out: 'I'll come back and work my claim.'

"The two men were present. They looked at each other, and one said: 'That settles it; if he doesn't die of fever he must never leave here alive. He'll have a thousand people here in less than a month.'

"The other responded coolly: 'Yes, we'll do him up if he happens to get well. I am sorry we didn't leave him to die the morning we found him.'

"Well, that talk settled me. I resolved to escape that night. I could not, because I found I was a prisoner. The Indian woman remained awake all night at the door. In the day time they frequently left me alone, and then I managed to get at the food and eat enough to strengthen me. The second night the husband of the Indian woman kept watch. The next day I was naturally sleepy and slept soundly until noon. Then I awoke and raved in a weaker tone of voice, as if I were gradually sinking. The half breed girl I noticed was sleeping all the afternoon. Before sunset she awoke, and her mother said to her in the Sioux language, which I understood: 'To-night the stranger may die to-morrow. To-night you will have to watch him.'

"Tacoma replied: 'Oh, why not get rid of him to-night. We do not wish to be bothered with him further.'

"They then discussed in detail my chances of getting well. The girl picked up a large hunting knife and looked at me. Her mother motioned her to put the knife down. I believe I would have been settled then and there but for that girl's mother. I made up my mind to escape that night, no matter if I had to fight my way out. It was a bright moonlight night, and I felt that I stood a good chance to have a rifle bullet put in me at long range in making a dash for liberty and life. The girl took a seat near the door, and the others soon fell asleep. My rifle was standing in the corner and my large hunting knife was on the pallet. Why they left the knife so near me is a mystery, unless they expected me to use it when eating jerked beef. Tacoma's death watch on me began at 9 o'clock. For two hours she scarcely moved in her chair and appeared deeply engrossed in thought. I remained perfectly quiet and at long intervals groaned feebly, as if my end were near. Between 11 and 12 o'clock she rose and looked at me. I dared not open my eyes. Then she turned and walked stealthily to the door, and, to my great joy, opened it and went out. In a second I was on my feet, secured my rifle and had my knife ready for action. With cat like tread I reached the door and stepped out into the broad glare of the moonlight. The girl was nowhere to be seen. I had resolved to level my rifle and threaten to shoot her if she made an outcry or tried to prevent my escape. I turned to the right of the house and reached the corner, intending to run down to the creek. Tacoma reached the corner from the other direction just as I did, and we collided. She seized me and gave a loud yell. It was all too sudden for me to reflect. I forgot she was a woman and plunged my knife to the hilt in her bosom. As she fell I sprang over her body and made for the creek. I heard the two men coming and knew that I could not escape them by flight. I got behind the banks of the creek and shot them both down before they came within fifty yards of me. I do not know to this day whether they are dead.

"During the night I fled to the south, and when daylight came I was many miles away. If that girl Tacoma had not"——

Canyon Joe's sentence was never finished. The half breed scout who had listened intently, without moving a muscle, to the cold blooded recital, sprang over the fire that separated him from Joe, and buried his large hunting knife to the hilt in the heart of the man who killed the beautiful Tacoma. Joe expired without a groan, and before any of us could interpose the scout had cut his scalp clean from his head.

Tacoma was the assassin's sister, and he explained that Joe murdered her in cold blood in the daytime in order to make away with the gold dust in the house. The grief stricken father pursued and was shot, but not killed. His brother, who was with him, was killed. The half breed scout was absent when the murder occurred. He vowed vengeance against the man who murdered his sister, but had no clew by which to discover the name or identity of the assassin. Canyon Joe had drank too much and lost his discretion, or else he would never have related the story. His body was left on the mountain to the vultures.—Homer Fort in New York Mail and Express.

What Am I To Do

The symptoms of Biliousness are unhappily too well known. They differ in different individuals to some extent. A Bilious man is seldom a breakfast eater. Too frequently, alas, he has an excellent appetite for liquids but none for solids of a morning. His tongue will hardly bear inspection at any time; if it is not white and furred, it is rough, at all events.

The digestive system is wholly out of order and Diarrhœa or Constipation may be a symptom or the two may alternate. There are often Hemorrhoids or even loss of blood. There may be giddiness and often headache and acidity or flatulence and tenderness in the pit of the stomach. To correct all this if not effect a cure try Green's August Flower, it costs but a trifle and thousands attest its efficacy.

Catarrah, Catarrahal Deafness and Hay Fever.

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the nose and eustachian tubes. Microscopic research, however, has proved this to be a fact, and the result is that a simple remedy has been formulated whereby catarrh, catarrhal deafness and hay fever is cured in from one to three simple applications made at home. A pamphlet explaining this new treatment is sent free on receipt of stamp, by A. H. Dixon & Son, 305 King street West, Toronto, Canada.—Christian Standard.

POLICE COURT.

(Before Edwin Johnson, Q. C. S. M.)

William Pascoe was charged by officer Robb with supplying intoxicants to an Indian. The officer said he was on duty between the hours of 6 and 8 p. m. near defendant's beer-bottling establishment; every night saw Indians travelling in and out of the place; saw six Indians come out; on the 22th saw two Indians, one of them being an Indian prisoner now in the dock; officer Walker and myself followed the Indian, named Willie Bob, and found a bottle of beer in his pocket. The Indian said he procured the beer in defendant's beer house, on Chatham street; believe he is the manager; was detailed on that duty for the past week.

Officer Walker—Know defendant; he keeps a beer-bottling establishment on Chatham street; saw two Indians coming out of defendant's place on Wednesday night; followed the Indian and took a bottle of beer from him; heard and saw Indians in the house.

Dick, an Indian, said he was drunk on Wednesday and received a bottle of beer from defendant for which he paid 25 cents.

Edward Pascoe said the Indian witness came to his place with a bottle in his pocket; gave him no liquor.

His Honor was glad to know that at least one of the white men had been convicted for supplying intoxicants to Indians. The poor natives had been continually brought up and fined, whilst the cause of their wretchedness were such men as the defendant, who had occupied an official position and must most assuredly know that he was committing a most grievous offence. Pascoe was fined $200 or imprisonment for four months.

Charles Robson stated that he paid defendant 12 shillings last Sunday; marked it in a pocket book.

To Mr. Wilson—Did not hire defendant, but took him as a substitute for another driver. The driver might have made a mistake in making change. The magistrate gave the driver the benefit of the doubt and he was discharged.

Jimmy Gibbon, a lad aged 14 years, was charged with stealing fuse and powder; the boy said he took two sticks.

Cragie and Robbins were also brought up on remand. Mr. Robbins, the boy's father, said he could do nothing with him and he sent the boy to school and also put him to work; he ran away two months ago. The father said he has exhausted all efforts to reform the boy.

Cragie informed the court that he slept around barns and did not go home because he would be kicked out; he had a step-father and mother.

Gibbons said he had a step-father and mother. The mother appeared in court and said her boy always slept home and was a good boy when not in company with the other lads.

Superintendent Bloomfield informed the court that Cragie and Gibbons were before His Honor on previous occasions.

His Honor was sorry that British Columbia is without a reformatory; but in order to break up the association he would send Robbins and Cragie to gaol for three months. Gibbon was discharged.

Ah Wah, the Chinaman committed for trial for entering the post office, was charged by Sergt. Sheppard with stealing a number of gold pens from M. W. Waitt & Co. The Sergt. stated that he went to prisoner's room and found nine gold pens in a drawer, which Mr. Waitt identified: a gold pen and holder was found on prisoner; the Chinaman said he bought the pen from Mr. Hibben.

Mr. Waitt recognized the prisoner; he went into witness' store about last Saturday and left without buying anything; missed a marine glass and some pens; recognize pens produced; they were marked by Mr. Johnson in the store; prisoner looked at some gold pens about ten days ago; always sold gold pens singly; did not think the pens were stolen until the Sergt. brought the pens produced. The cost value of the articles is $22.

Mr. Wilson appeared for the prisoner and reserved his defense. The Chinaman was also committed for trial on this charge.

Another charge against Ah Wah was laid by Sergt. Sheppard for stealing an opera glass and pictures from J. B. Ferguson, valued at $8.50. The Sergeant said that he took prisoner to his room, in Yuen Lung's building, and found a pocket album in his drawer; also received an ink stand from the gaoler, which was taken from prisoner on Sunday last. Mr. J. B. Ferguson identified the property.

Charles Braund, sworn—Am clerk for B. C. Stationery Company, J. B. Ferguson manager. The ink bottle produced is valued at $1.50; it was never sold by the firm; the pocet album produced was not sold but belongs to the firm, it is valued at $4.50; the opera glasses produced belong to the B. C. Stationery Company and the value is $3; did not miss the glasses until the Sergeant brought them in; know the prisoner; he was in the store on Saturday morning and looked at some opera glasses; he wanted a telescope and bought nothing.

Officer Hawton—Searched the prisoner and found an ink bottle in his possession. The Chinaman was remanded until to-morrow on this charge.

"From Sire to Son."

"If from "Sire to Son" were the first drama from the pen of Milton Nobles," says the Denver Republican, "we have not the slightest question that the critics would grant it a high place among popular plays. And if they shall fail to do it now it will be either because they will not give it a patient hearing or because the witnessing of "The Phœnix" and "Interviews" has prejudiced them against Mr. Nobles as a playwright. We desire to compliment Mr. Nobles upon the writing of so excellent a play as "From Sire to Son." It has faults, but as a whole it is strong and well-managed. In the main the dialogue which Mr. Nobles has written for this play is natural and effective. "From Sire to Son" is a play the author may well be proud of, and whose presentation will bring many dollars into the box office. The climaxes are all strong and well managed, and the play is unique without being unnatural. Its presentation at the Tabor last night was satisfactory. The cast was entirely adequate. Mr. Nobles and his wife played the roles of the hero and heroine, respectively, and Mr. Thomas Hunter did some really very artistic work in the character of a mining camp doctor."

This new drama will be presented at the Victoria on Monday evening by Milton and Dolly Nobles, supported by a strong dramatic company. Tuesday evening "Love and Law;" reserved seats at Waitt's.

TURNER, McDONALD & CO., TRAITORS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR:—Bishop Cridge, Senator McDonald, Finance Minister Turner, Councillor Pearse and Agent-General Beeton stand before the public as traitors to their Queen and country, they having aided and abetted the traitor Duncan in his seditious purpose by giving him credentials to a foreign (American) government, inducing that foreign government to believe that the Indians of British Columbia were infamously treated—that they had no religious liberty, and therefore sought an asylum in the United States, whose bad treatment of Indians has been notoriously cruel. By inference, what must that of British Columbia have been?

"Spectator," seeking to shield himself and the traitorous crew, says: "I feel sure that every common-sense person will approve of the peaceable though much to be regretted (why) course pursued by the Metlakahtlans, and no doubt the Indian Department will look at it in this light." Instead "of the course pursued by the Metlakahtlans," properly read the course pursued by Messrs. Duncan, McDonald and Turner—the Indians were the puppets. These so-called white men planned the scheme and gave Duncan his credentials to a foreign government. The Indians did not. Their conduct, therefore, cannot be looked upon as other than disloyal. Let us see whether these traitors and "time have led to the happy solution of the difficulty," i. e., the departure of Duncan and his show! Pity it is that his co-conspirators and partners did not go with him!

Duncan (metaphorically) had a menagerie of tamed and educated Indians at Metlakahtla whom he had taught and trained to perform certain tricks, and among these tricks were some to show off an imitation of not real but play grievances, as this sort of thing was supposed to extort money. These actors now began to think their players' character real, and their acted grievances real also, and so by degrees magnified their supposed grievances with the aid of their tutor, so that mountains were created out of molehills—a bubble large, but containing very little soap. The manager had raised a creature he could not quell; his educated Indians would not believe they were acting, and so they turned their learned tricks upon the government of the country, the play-bad-character of their play grievances. Being baulked of acting in reality their nefarious play-trick, the showman, with the aid of his white confederates, finding it getting too warm for them and that they themselves were in danger from their own creation, and the government think it safer for themselves to get the show transported to a foreign country! Duncan, the showman, goes to America, takes the oath of allegiance and thereby specially and specifically denounces Her Majesty and all her belongings. This traitorous act is rewarded by giving him, for his perfidy, an island to which he can take his show and their manufactured enmity to Her Most Gracious Majesty; and as one of their chief tricks has been trading, so they can indulge in this pursuit by means of cheap American goods, and so do good to the foreign government and injury to the country that fed, fattened and fostered them. Gratitude does not exist among Indians, nor in great chief Duncan Mahdi.

Now then we have the Traitor showman upon an island close upon the British border line. What will be the result? He will teach his Indians new tricks, among which will be first and foremost, hatred to Her Majesty and to all and everything British, so that should any trouble arise between Her Majesty's subjects and (what Turner fawningly terms) "our sister country," this showman and his tamed and educated Indians will be willing and ready to turn to the Indians—and against all those benefactors who subscribed their money to make them happy here and hereafter—who tamed them and had made some steps towards civilizing them—who found them frozen and warmed them, and now they want to bite the hand that rescued them. Further, other Indians have been to Duncan's show, and like schoolboys, imitate some of the tricks they saw performed. Other showmen, too, have taken up the trade; more traitors now exist amongst the Tsimpseyans. Enemies now are on our borders where once stood friends and loyalty.

This is what "Spectator"—very probably McDonald and his traitorous crew—call a happy solution of a difficult problem!!! Why liken these Indians to the poor Irish? Say what you please, the Irish are at the bottom loyal to Her Majesty. Her army, her navy, and government offices, manned with Irish prove it. Would that so much could be said of the B. C. Senator and Finance Minister. The Irish are poor, Ireland overcrowded, no work, perhaps but little food. Why liken these to our well fed, well clothed, and comfortably housed Indians all over the land. Did these show Indians remove from B. C. to a foreign country to be better housed and fed? Certainly not. They left, led by traitors to her majesty, to become inimical to her majesty. The British do not desire all the Irish to leave, but they desire to do good for them. Salisbury and Gladstone are both honestly actuated by this desire. They may be extremists, and if so a third party will spring up, for in medio tutissima, and come to a satisfactory settlement. The British and Irish will settle their differences in a constitutional manner, but neither will be wilfully traitors to their country. As "Spectator" seems so glad to get the Irish removed to a not British but foreign soil, so he and Duncan, McDonald and Co., may have the wish and the intention to remove more Indians; complete Duncan's idea of an Indian nation, and so create more enemies to her majesty, and a menace even to the peace of Alaska.

Probably very shortly "Spectator," alias Senator Macdonald, will pose as a great statesman and diplomatist! Turner as a great financier, and the latter will show how greatly this exodus of the Indians has improved the income of the province. The public have heard the fable of the fox who had had his tail lopped off, and they will apply it.

The Triumph's Band.

Through the kindness of Admiral Seymour the band of H. M. S. Triumph under the leadership of Mr. Agius, will take part in the concert of Madame C. de la Mothe to-morrow evening, and will discourse some of its best selections. Everything has been done to make this one of the most attractive concerts given here, and judging from the selections now on the programme, it promises to be a musical success. Already a large number of seats have been reserved, and parties desiring good seats will do well to procure them early at Lombard's music store.

Cupid's Victims.

NANAIMO, Oct. 28.—Mr. William J. McKeon, of the Oriental Hotel, Victoria, and Miss Fannie Westover, of this city, were united in marriage this morning. The happy couple were escorted to the depot by a large number of friends. As Mr. McKeon and his bride stepped on board the train an avalanche of rice was poured upon them. The platform was completely strewed with that commodity. Slippers and shoes were thrown after them. For some distance along the track torpedoes were placed on the rails. As the locomotive passed over these the explosions resembled a park of artillery firing volleys. The best wishes of the large crowd assembled to see them off follow the young couple.
